Statement on Conflict Minerals

Esterline supports ending the violence and human rights violations reportedly supported by profits from the sale of certain metals mined in the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) or adjoining countries. Section 1502 of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act promotes transparency and consumer awareness of the use by U.S. publicly traded companies of “conflict minerals” (tin, tantalum, tungsten and gold, or “3TG”) that directly or indirectly benefit armed groups in that region. In response to Dodd-Frank, the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission has imposed disclosure requirements on publicly traded companies (together with the Dodd-Frank Act, the “Rule”) concerning the use of 3TG in their products, the origin of the metals used if they are not “conflict free”, and the due diligence efforts employed to determine the country of origin and chain of custody of the metals. Under the Rule, “conflict free” means the product does not contain 3TG that directly or indirectly finances or benefits armed groups in the DRC or an adjoining country. As a publicly-traded manufacturing company whose products require the use of 3TG to ensure the functional performance as specified by our customers, we expect to be subject to the Rule. Accordingly, we have undertaken a variety of activities, including the establishment of a Conflict Minerals Policy, to prepare for compliance with the Rule.

While we use 3TG in our products, we do not purchase the metals directly from smelters or mines, so we must rely on the source information provided by our suppliers. We are engaged with our direct suppliers to trace minerals back to their origin and ensure responsible sourcing throughout the supply chain. Esterline is using a process based on the standardized EICC/GeSI Conflict Minerals Reporting Template and the services of an experienced third party vendor to accomplish our country of origin inquiry and the preparation of the required disclosures. Should Esterline become aware of a supplier whose supply chain includes metals from a non-conflict free source, we will take the appropriate actions to remedy the situation as contemplated by the Rule. Our expectation is that our suppliers will do the same so that we maintain alignment with the requirements of the Rule throughout the entire supply chain.

We are committed to having the information for our own reporting requirements, as well as those of our customers, in support of the reporting deadlines specified by the Rule.

Should you have questions about our process or this Statement, please contact ConflictMinerals@esterline.com.
